THE NEW YEAR ADVERTISER WAS A POPULAR SUCCESS

The New Year Advertiser caught the fancy of Honolulu. All morning and during the first part of the afternoon there was a constant demand for the papers, and only when the presses failed to keep up the supply did the sale for the day pause.

The demand was for large quantities, too, as it was the exception that a purchaser wanted only one paper. But the fact that the sale was cut off for the day does not mean that there will be no more for the use of those who wish the souvenir for preservation or sending to friends. The supply will be full and there will be no shortage today. The paper was a revelation to many Honolulu people. Some there were who tried to find another sheet than that enclosed in the ornate cover, as they did not think it possible that the news of the day was included in so perfectly prepared a paper, but considered that there was, in the illustrated section, only the many special articles which had been prepared for the occasion.

C. M. Cooke, of the Bank of Hawaii said of the Advertiser: "It was the most perfect edition, I believe, I have ever seen of the kind. It was comprehensive and well put up. It was just the thing we all want to send away, and we shall send it to our correspondents everywhere. It was in every way a most creditable edition of the Advertiser."

Justice C. A. Gulbraith: "The Advertiser of this morning was certainly a splendid edition. It was excellently gotten up and was filled with most valuable information. The paper should be commended upon its excellent work in this regard."

James McInerney: "Good. The paper quite outdid itself in the edition of this morning. It was splendidly printed and illustrated, and will be very valuable for the worth of its contents."

Charles A. Girdler: "The New Year's Advertiser was very good, and I must say it was a most creditable paper, both for the office which issued it and the city. I don't think I ever have seen a better edition of a newspaper."

R. W. Shingle: "I cannot say too much in praise of the edition of the Advertiser. It was perfectly gotten up, well illustrated and splendidly printed. It is a most valuable edition at this time. A city is judged by its publications, and this shows the condition of Honolulu to be the very best. Waterhouse & Company will send the paper to its correspondents throughout the States, as it will give exactly the proper impression of what is the condition of affairs here."

H. P. Eakin: "I think the edition is the very best the Advertiser has ever gotten out. It is a truly great paper, and will carry the right kind of information about the country and its resources."

D. B. Machonachie: "I think it is a most excellent paper. I have been discussing it with some friends and I was told by two gentlemen that in their opinion it is the best thing of its kind ever printed here. It is a great credit to the city."

George Ashley: "I have not read all that is in the paper, as I have been saving that for another time. I looked through it, however, and found it all that I expected. It is broad and well gotten up, I believe, and will be just the thing to send away."

Frank E. Richardson: "It is the swiftest thing in the way of a special edition you could have gotten out. It is so well written and illustrated that it will be the very best possible aid to send to persons away from here who are interested in reading about Honolulu."

Edward Ingham: "I regard it as a very good edition, filled with the very best of material for the conveying of information of just what Honolulu and Hawaii are doing and what will be their future. There is no better paper than the Advertiser has showed itself to be."

Hugh Walker: "I was very much pleased with the Advertiser and think it was of the highest possible grade."

Auditor H. C. Austin: "I have not had time to read it yet. There appears to be a lot of valuable information there, though. Marston Campbell's article is particularly interesting and valuable."

Daniel Logan, Bulletin: "It's very nice, lots of good stuff in it, nothing flashy, all solid matter."

W. H. Robinson, Republican: "That was a great paper you got out this morning. It was an excellent edition."

Delegate Wilcox was not consulted about the judicial appointment at all, which naturally made him sore. He felt somewhat inclined to try to block it in the Senate, but probably will desist from such an effort.

As already telegraphed to the Advertiser, the strong personal recommendation of Representative Metcalf, of Oakland, Cal., was a powerful factor in Mr. Robinson's appointment. He had plenty of other support, including Senator Bard, of California, whose recommendation, however, was largely perfunctory as a former constituent. He stated in his letter that he hardly knew the applicant personally. Mr. Metcalf, now a rising and influential member of the House, told the Attorney General in very vigorous language that he regarded Mr. Robinson as a brilliant young lawyer, thoroughly qualified for the bench if a good man was desired. Judge Gulbraith, of Honolulu, who is said to have been consulted by letter from the Attorney General about the additional judgeship, and who wrote here commending Mr. Thompson for the appointment, penned a subsequent missive stating simply that, without reciting the letter he had previously written in behalf of Mr. Thompson, he wished to state that Mr. Robinson was a man of excellent qualifications. There were some thirteen letters in all from Honolulu lawyers for Mr. Robinson, among them being F. M. Hatch, H. A. Bigelow and Albert Judd. The sixty-two endorsements to a petition from Oakland and Alameda county, Cal., in behalf of Mr. Robinson's appointment, included seven judges of different jurisdictions in that vicinity. Judge Humphreys is not on record as having anything whatever to say about the successful candidate. Indeed, the Attorney General, whose recommendation was endorsed by the President, has stated his determination to avoid the factional quarrels in the Republican party of Hawaii as far as possible, and he wanted to select a man for judge who would be as far removed as possible from these factional quarrels.

As for the appointment of Mr. Breckons to be United States attorney, it was done by the President without recommendation from the Attorney General, because of the endorsement of Mr. Dunne by the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Long. The two Wyoming Senators were much discouraged over the prospects of their candidate when they called on the Attorney General about it some days ago, but Senator Warren's personal popularity with the President undoubtedly had much weight. Mr. Breckons was strongly endorsed by Wyoming Republicans. It is worth mentioning also, that Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, had a letter on file in behalf of the appointment of Mr. Robinson as judge. Although Mr. Edgar Cayless charges that Senator Perkins was one of those responsible for his defeat, the Senator himself disclaims any interference in the matter whatever. "I am out of Hawaiian politics entirely," said the Senator, when the matter was mentioned to him. "I refer you on such matters to Col. Sam Parker, the new national committeeman for Hawaii."

Mr. Cayless regarded his appointment as assured and consequently was very much chagrined to see the President ignore his old college classmate. Harvard, Mr. Harold Sewall, now of Maine. The judicial aspirant had some pretty harsh things to say about Attorney General Knox, but declared that he did not intend to call upon him lest he should feel like saying just what he thought.

"These appointments seem to clean up about all there is to do for the present," said Colonel Parker before he left for New York. "I shall be back here early in January, to press legislation affecting the irrigation of certain lands in the Territory. I understand some Democrats in Congress are preparing to fight me, but that does not discourage me." Colonel Parker added that he hardly knew Mr. Robinson, the new judge, was, but believed that he was a lawyer of brief residence in Honolulu.

Just before Congress adjourned Mr. Cayless, who has been a guest at the Shoreham, departed for New York

WOMEN TURN OUT TO FIGHT FIRE

Small Blaze at Pa'aa Extinguished by Hard Work of Neighbors.

What was thought by the Fire Department to have been a false alarm early Tuesday evening, was in fact very close to a dangerous fire. It occurred in the residence of Major Wood of the Salvation Army, in the McCully tract, when the major was absent down town at a meeting, and but for the timely aid of neighbors, Mrs. Wood, an invalid, might have had difficulty in escaping the blaze.

bucket brigade, and Mrs. Evans, on a ladder, soon broke through the roof where the blaze was working, and used a garden hose with effect. It was only a short time until the fire was under control, a half hour perhaps, though there was much damage done to the furniture. The Department got as far as King street and the Waikiki road, and then seeing nothing, departed, and believed that it was a false alarm. The quick and clear-headed work of the women alone prevented a fire which would have swept the row and perhaps caused loss of life.

THE STUDY OF IRRIGATION

Jared Smith begins work today on his new detail under the Bureau of Irrigation. For two months he will study the irrigation problems of Hawaii and will visit Hawaii, Maui, and Kauai in his investigations. Most of the work will be done on Oahu, however, as there is more pumping apparatus in use here. Mr. Smith will obtain statistics as to rainfall, amount of water used in irrigation per acre, yield and value of crops grown on such land, class of power, fuel, kinds of pumps and similar information.

Experience takes dreadfully high school wages, but he teaches like no other.—Caryle.
